Deborah Giles is a family law lawyer in the firm's Saskatoon office. Deborah has extensive litigation and negotiation experience and has successfully argued and defended matters in all levels of Court in Saskatchewan.

Deborah has a general family law practice; however has a particular passion for family farm files.

Overview

Deborah's practice focuses mainly in the area of family law. Deborah has successfully assisted clients at every level of court in Saskatchewan, including matters before the Court of Appeal. Her family law practice includes negotiating Interspousal, pre-nuptial, cohabitation and separation agreements along with extensive litigation experience in divorce, child and spousal support, division of property and parenting. In addition, Deborah has been fortunate to be able to incorporate the experience and knowledge from having been born and raised on a farm near Saskatoon into her practice.
